AIA Hong Kong – 1st Quarterly Meeting 2012 :

Recycling Spaces: Creating Urban Evolution

A Presentation by Martha Schwartz, Award-winning Landscape Architect

We are pleased to announce that our First Quarterly Meeting will feature landscape architect, Martha Schwartz, the recipient of numerous awards and prizes including the Honorary Royal Designer for Industry from the Royal Society for the Encouragement of Arts and Honorary Fellow of the Royal Institute of British Architects, among others.

In addition to being a landscape architect and artist based in London UK and Cambridge, Mass., Martha Schwartz is Professor in Practice of Landscape Architecture at Harvard University Graduate School of Design. Her work spans from site-specific art installations to working with cities at strategic planning levels.

Her focus is on environmental sustainability and the creation of awareness about how urban landscapes underwrite urban sustainability through functioning as the platform for a city's environmental, social and economic health. Schwartz is an advocate for how cities can reduce climate change and support a more sustainable approach to diminishing resources. She continues her devotion to the built environment through pushing new boundaries and expressions as a designer. She believes that design creates identity, value for public spaces, and helps to differentiate ourselves in an ever-growing uniformity of place as a result of globalization.

Please join us to meet Martha to learn more about her design work and her philosophy.
